A Reverie.

WHEN a man contemplates giving up his home, with all its sacred surroundings, in anticipation of removal to a distant state, he may well pause and ask himself, "What of the new country," from which such favorable reports have come. The weight of a great responsibility seems to oppress him for what he says to himself: If another error is made, it will certainly prove irretrieveable. The last move was a poor one, for the soil here is too thin: the winters too long and rigorous, and the summers too uncertain. There is too much wind, rain, ice and snow, and too little sunshine.

Yet one may go farther and fare worse. Well that old saying has puzzled many a wiser brain than mine and often turned aside far greater resolutions. Yet I must go; I have determined upon that, but whither?

California is too far away and land there is too costly, and as one must irrigate, he must constantly pay taxes on irrigation ditches and I know nothing of that method of agriculture, and yet, I would seek a country which is in many respects like that which I hear of California.

At the click of the gate the dreamer awakens from his reverie to receive the morning mail What is this? A Souvenir Guide of Dallas, the metropolis of the Lone Star Empire State.

Is this the land of which I have been dreaming? He reads on and on about the land that has fewer drawbacks than any other that can be named; a land which has an assured future, where industry and good management prevail; a land of salubrious clime and unequalled soil, capable of producing the cereals of the Northern and Middle states, and the luscious fruits of the semi-tropics, where the figs of Persia grow side by side, in the open air, with the hardier fruits of Northern climes.: a land exempt from earthquakes, and blizzards, and ice and snow—a very paradise for cattle, and horses, sheep, and swine and poultry—a land in which the laws protect the homestead and daily wages, for the shelter and maintainance of the wife and little ones; truly the vertible promised Canan Land of milk and honey, which Moses first viewed from Sinai's crest.

After the days of preparation, and a few hours rapid gliding behind the iron horse, the dreamer reaches the anticipated home.

Amazed, he beholds, not only the promised wonders in soil and clime, but, instead of the dreary and lonely prairie and the cheerless and rugged frontier home—a landscape beauteous with thrifty farms, and luxuriant crops, and lordly oaks, and graceful elms, lovely shrubs and flowers, singing birds and honey bees, such as the frigid North never produced; netted with railways, telegraph and telephone lines; dotted with school buildings and church edifices, mills and factories; refreshed with flowing springs, and artesian wells, and navig'ble streams, and abundant rains in season; and above all, the City of Dallas near by, with its tall spires and smoking factories, mammoth stores and beautiful homes, where the shrill whistle of the steamers Harvey and Dallas, fortells of that halcyon time, when the metropolis shall send her products, at water rates, to the seaboard and the world.

DALLAS.

IN THE poet's view, dreams are visitors from the ivory gate, or children of an idle brain, but science is more prosaic, and teaches that dreams may be realities. In history we have many iridescent dreamers; in fact, all our great men have been such, and in many instances the dream has surpassed all human expectations. Little did the young lawyer, John Neely Bryan, as he he pitched his lonely tent on the banks of the Trinity river in 1840, dream that he was the founder of a city which was to be the future metropolis of the South.

Wonderful has been the growth and unparalelled the expansion of this whole Republic within the last decade, but no section has ever seen such wonderful development as has enterprising Dallas.

In 1870 the population was only 1700; but fortunately for Dallas, the accursed spirit of division, which has blighted the fair prospects of many a young city, was unknown here.

Great enterprises and boundless public spirit were stamped on every feature of the city. Enterprise and industry have achieved results as startling as the wave of the magician's wand, and in this atom of time has sprung up, as if it were by magic, a city with a population of 61,855 souls. Nor has the march of development slackened, but the watch-word is still "Onward!" and Dallas is ranked among the largest and most progressive cities of the South.

If you knew Dallas ten or fifteen years ago and should depend upon your memory for a picture of the Dallas of to-day, you have a very small idea of the character of the future metropolis of the South. Such changes as have taken place: Stately churches, magnificent business blocks, towering office buildings, huge mercantile and manufacturing establishments, and many beautiful homes.

Dallas has an ideal site for a city. It being over 500 feet above the sea level, one constantly catches picturesque views of the surrounding country, from its broad and well kept thoroughfares.

In 1872, the first railroad, the Houston & Texas Central, reached Dallas; then came the Texas & Pacific, the Dallas & Wichita (now of the M. K. & T. system), the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe, the Trunk. and the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, giving six railways, thus making connections in twelve different direction. These roads have done more for the progress and development of the city, than any other factor in its history.

The track of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific is now completed as far as Fort Worth, which leaves only a few miles yet to be laid, before her engines will be steaming into the Texas metropolis. The Cotton Belt (St. Louis Southwestern), is also making preparations to extend is line into the city, and these two lines will be added to the system of railways centering in Dallas. In fact, such transportation facilities are the only basis for the solid, substantial growth of the city, and, on the other hand, a city that possesses such facilities is bound to go ahead. Such has been the experience of every ambitious city.

As a manufacturing and industrial center, Dallas presents superior advantages. Its geographical location will soon be able to give it a water route, via. the Trinity river, to the sea, thus affording her greater facilities for the transportation of her poducts, than any other section in the great Southwest. While Dallas possesses more manufacturing establishments than most cities of the same size, it is, in this field of development, particularly, that capital seeking investment, can reap the richest harvest. Dallas now has 183 manufacturies, and still has ample room for more. And, with the development of the now idle prairie, she will build factories and enterprising industries. Doubtless there is more money made in the manufacturing business, than any other business engaged in, in this state, with an equal amount of capital. To all manufacturers wishing to change their location, Dallas offers a field unsurpassed both in matters of its natural resources and shipping facilities. She wants no adventurers, but to factory men, who are the promoters of legitimate schemes, a warm welcome is extended. She has a field for factories of almost any kind, and any one will do well to investigate before locating elsewhere.

The Texas State Fair Association and grounds, situated at Dallas, are the pride and admiration, of not only the stock growers of Dallas and vicinity, but of this whole state, and the interest now being manifested gives assurance that the coming fair will be crowned with greater success than any of its predecessors.

The water supply is undoubtedly the best of any city in Texas. Besides the water system, which is supplied from the Trinity river, costing $1,500,000, with a pumping capacity of 27,000,000 gallons per day: there are thirty-seven artesian wells, owned by the city and private parties These wells give a never failing supply of sweet, pure water, with a capacity of from 5000 to 10,000 gallons per hour.

The city is well lighted by electricity and gas and it is claimed that Dallas is one of the best lighted cities in the state. There are over 300 arc lights and 4500 incandescent lamps. There are also several private plants for various purposes and light for business houses and private residences.

Dallas has thirty miles of paved and macadamized streets, well kept; and forty-nine miles of street railway, furnishing excellent transportation to all parts of the city.

Dallas boasts of one of the best equipped and most serviceable paid fire departments in the country. The latest improved Gamewell fire alarm, with sixty-one boxes and 190 hydrants, is in use.

Among the public buildings of which the citizens are justly proud, is the courthouse, which is a magnificent structure. It was erected at a cost of $350,000. The view from the dome is simply superb, covering the heart of the busy city, and the pretty Trinity river, with its green banks, and the net-work of railroads. Visitors should not fail to see this view. Other beautiful buildings are the city hall, costing $100,000; the United States post-office and custom house, costing $255,000, and the commodious stone opera house. Besides these are many more fine public buildings, which were erected without regard to expense, which goes to show that Dallas is a wide awake city. There are forty-six church edifices, of which many are stately and grand, and which represent all the different denominations.

The educational facilities are of the highest order, and evince the highly cultivated character of Dallas people. There are fourteen public schools, eighteen private schools, business colleges, and convents; schools of design, music halls, etc. This is a consideration of vast importance to heads of families, engaged in any industry or profession and desiring to combine their material progress with the highest possible good for their children. There is no city in the South blessed with the educational advantages of Dallas.

Another indication of the intellectual wellfare of the city is the hearty endorsement and support given the press. The Dallas News, an eight-page seven-column paper, (enlarging its Sunday issue to twenty pages), is without its equal in the South. It can be safely asserted that the "News" is the most popular paper in Texas. Its circulation is ten to one of any other daily. It is the only paper in the South which runs its own special trains, giving the news of the world to points within one hundred miles before breakfast.

The Times-Herald, also an eight-page, evening paper, has no superior in any city of this size.

The Texas Farm and Ranch is the largest and most extensively circulated paper of its kind in the Southwest. Besides these, there are twenty-six other flourishing newspapers, and several magazines.

Dallas has five national and several private banks, that are reliable and enjoying unlimited public confidence, and which have a capital and surplus of $4,000,000. These banks are as solid financial institutions as can be found in the South.

There are also several local building societies and strong national associations, with an authorized capital of $200,000,000.

As a wholesale center Dallas takes the lead and occupies the field, and will always control the jobbing trade of the Southwest, as she has secured reasonable freight rates, and now invites not only Texas, but also other states to come and do a jobbing trade. In Dallas are located wholesale houses of nearly all classes of business; in fact, anything that can be carried in job lots. One striking illustration of the magnitude of the city's trade is given in one item of agricultural implements and machinery; reaching as it does over $10,000,000 annually, being second to only one other city in the United States in this branch of business, Kansas City. It is estimated that during the past year the following wholesale business was done in Dallas:

During the past ten years Dallas has been making rapid strides, so that to-day its wonderful progress is perceptable on all sides. "In all the North and East there is not another city like Dallas, with so large an area of rich and productive lands tributary to it, which has not a population of 150,000 to 500,000. Many of the Northern and Eastern cities are not more than two hundred miles apart; yet Dallas is six hundred miles south of Kansas City, eight hundred miles southwest of St. Louis, four hundred miles west of Memphis and five hundred miles from New Orleans, most admirably located, with a territory extending four hundred miles west, three hundred miles south, two hundred miles east and one hundred miles north—an empire within itself—with Dallas its commercial center."

The growth of Dallas has been rapid, but permanent. This progress has been the result of the systematic and energetic use of the advantages which nature has bestowed, coupled with the energy of enthusiasm and determination.

It is a remarkably healthy city, and no serious epidemic has ever visited it. The death rate is very low, being only ten to the thousand.

THE CHANCELLOR BREWSTER BUGGY.

This buggy has for years been a specialty with us, in fact, we were the first introducers of a full trimmed buggy that could be sold at a moderate price; its success has been phenomenal. Our Chancellor buggy has been imitated by nearly every jobber and manufacturer in the country, but the fact remains that we are selling the best buggy ever put up for the money. It is practically a wrought iron hand made buggy, the axle clips, reach irons, top joints and solid shifting rails are forged out by hand from the best Norway iron. Our competitors are using malleable and cast iron, still they will tell you theirs is "just as good as the Chancellor." They know it's false, and time will so demonstrate it. It has full Leather top and back curtain, rubber side curtains, silver plated top joints, dash-rail, hub-bands, hand-holds and curtain fasteners on back curtain, and is absolutely reliable in every way and the best ever sold for the price we ask. Ask your dealer for P. O. Co.'s Chancellor and take no substitute. See that our name-plate is on the back. Oak Cliff, Suburb of the City of Dallas

THE worshipper of Nature here may find, "A rich repast where he may feast the mind."

Could he who, in the plaintive story of "Evangeline," sung of the beautiful "Teche country," to-day visit the beautiful Oak Cliff addition, he would find so much of the practical and attractive, joined with the picturesque, that he would bid his muse begone. Here where the flowers kissed the morning dew, and the primeval forests echoed only with the songs of native warblers, has been made to-day one of the most beautiful residence additions to the thriving and charming metropolis of Texas.

This beautiful tract of land is on a high plateau. Oak Cliff is recognized as the residence seekers, sequestered spot. It has its own electric light and water plants. It also has a fine school system, and it points with pride to

The Dallas and Oak Cliff Elevated Railroad (with its principal station corner of Jefferson and Commerce streets, on Court House Square) substantially constructed and elevated above the flood tide of the Trinity river, which it crosses—forms a belt of ten miles from the business center of Dallas, re-entering the city from a westerly direction, on Main street. The system which dominates the management of this road involves the strictest discipline among employees. and the most rigid exactitude in every detail. Trains leave promptly and run on schedule time. The fare is only five cents—the same as on street cars.

A contract has been let for a Motor line extending from Oak Cliff to the fair grounds in east Dallas, the distance of nine miles.

A two minutes walk from the station, along Park street, fringed on both sides with beautiful shade trees, brings you to the auditorium, where is found an amphitheatre with capacity to seat 2000, and equipments that would do credit to a large city.

Just adjacent and spreading from the auditorium, is the Oak Cliff Park, which occupies an area of 125 acres of natural beauty, improved here and there with trees and flowers, diversified by hill and dale. It is penetrated in all directions by beautiful and well-kept drives. This park is kept free from all objectionable features. The Park is bordered on the south by a beautiful lake, half a mile in length and 200 yards in width.

It is the design of the projectors, and the citizens of Oak Cliff, to encourage and secure the location in Oak Cliff of desireable citizens only; and with that purpose constantly in view they have employed such safeguards and expedients as they command, and as a result of this policy Oak Cliff contains a distinctly moral people. Intoxicating liquors cannot be found within her limits. In keeping with this policy, no sort of questionable resorts are tolerated

On the whole, Oak Cliff is at present a thorough-going and hustling town, with flattering promises of continued and assured success.

DALLAS COUNTY.

WHEN we consider the location of Dallas County, in the heart of the wealthiest and most productive portion of the state, where, for a radius of from 100 to 300 miles, it is surrounded by as fine a farming country as can be found on the face of the globe, settled by an industrious and enterprising class of citizens, and penetrated by a net work of railroads, we need not wonder at its marvelous growth. No county can show greater advancement than Dallas, the "Banner County" of Texas. Hundreds, yea thousands, of her broad acres, o'er which cattle and horses roamed and grazed unmolested not more than a quarter of a century ago, have been converted into great blooming gardens, and now shoot forth into the hand of industry, as if touched by a magic wand, the products of untold happiness and wealth.

The baleful and mournful cry of the coyote has long since been hushed, and, in its place, comes the far away bellowing of the pensive cow, the bleating of the sheep and the barking of the farmer's dog.

The prairie trail has been supplanted by the well kept country road, dotted on either side by the pretty home of the thrifty farmer. The slow ox train has given way to the iron horse and railroads are running hither and yon past beautiful farms and through charming thrifty, little towns and cities, and electric lights flash out on the evening air in place of the coon hunter's torch. In brief, upon a beautiful landscape a picture of highly attained civilization has been and is being painted. Thrift and enterprise, brain and capital are grappling with the wealth of field and forrest and making of Dallas County the garden spot of the South.

The county is watered by the Trinity river and its tributaries, which supply an abundance of water for stock during the entire year. Besides these there are a large number of running streams and natural springs and artesian wells making the water supply in this county unquestionably the best and most abundant of any section in this portion of the state.

The lands in Dallas county are probably more varied in quality than any other part of the state of equal area, and in consequence are adapted to a greater variety of crops. There is the black-waxy prairie, the light-gray sandy land, the black-sandy loam and the rich alluvium of the bottoms; each especially adapted to special crops, each presenting its advantages, and all yielding rich returns to the hand of industry.

The surface is beautifully undulating, thoroughly drained and in consequence is, to a great extent, free from those distressing malarial diseases so dreaded by home seekers in the South. The gulf breezes blow during the greater part of the year, and no one could help being impressed with a climate so mild, invigorating and healthful, where the sun's heat is softened by the gulf breeze to such an extent that the longest summer days rarely become oppressive and one never fails to enjoy a good night's rest. The winters are mild, the themometer scarcely going as low as zero, and when visited by cold weather the duration is never more than two or three days: thereby allowing out door work to be prosecuted almost the whole year round.

Dallas county ranks first in population. Some people say: "Yes; I know that Dallas county is capable of sustaining a very dense population: but I prefer more elbow room." Well, perhaps that question has two sides: but here are some of the advantages of living in a thickly settled country: Land purchased now from $15 to $25 per acre will inhance in value to $75 and $100 per acre, and even higher as time goes on. The cities and towns will grow steadily, and all sorts of manufacturing enterprises will spring up, for such masses of people will make ready home markets, and supply an abundance of labor. Schools and Colleges will flourish; more raiiroads will be built to transact the business of the teeming thousands of people. The farms will be small and cultivated like gardens, while all the best ideas in agriculture and stock raising will prevail. Churches and literary societies will be numerous; there will be very few rich people, and very few poor ones; the aggregate wealth will be immense; taxes will be low and public improvements the best, charities will increase in munificence as even now, the blind, the insane and infirm are well cared for. In short, civilization will attain the highest development, and no land under the sun will contain a better or happier people. This is no fancy sketch, but a faint outline of what is in store for this section of Texas. That all this and more will be realized is just as certain as that peace and good government shall continue to bless this wonderful country.

We doubt whether an investment in farm lands in the old states would pay even six per cent. on the money. We do not believe an investor in the lands in the old states would make much by an increase in values. In Dallas county the values of lands have doubled themselves every few years, and when put in cultivation will net thirty to forty per cent. annually on the investment. Is there anything better than such land anywhere?

To the denizens of the frozen Northwest this would prove another Canan, a land where the sun never ceases to shine; where the freezing blasts are tempered by the mild breath of the gulf stream; where the plowman's song may be heard throughout the year, and generous nature never tires of giving good gifts to the hand of industry, where a generous soil only awaits the hand of the husbandman to smile with plenty, and where the iron hand of winter never falls

The social status of the people of this county is equal to that of any other section of the Union. Their houses are good and well-kept and in many cases luxurious. Their farms are well stocked, well fenced and intelligently cultivated. All the comforts and conveniences of life are at command and enjoyed by all. The most improved farm implements and machinery are in general use and there is not probably ten acres in the county where a sulky plow or cultivator could not be used.

There is the strictest observance of order and law, and crime is probably as great a stranger in Dallas county as in the most cultivated societies of the older states. The people are hospitable, generous and sociable, kind and obliging to strangers, always willing to assist or advise. The mass of people are comfortably off and live well. Poverty, such as is common in almost all older communities, is unknown, and discord is a stranger.

We no longer have whole states from which to select a location for a home. As the increase of population continues, new homes are in constant demand. Why remain in a location giving small returns when here one-half the labor now performed would bring a much greater income?

Dallas county extends no welcome to idlers, rich or poor. But for industry or integrity, for capital of cash, for capital of brains or capital of brawn there is an abundance of possibilities. Dallas County has to offer rich lands at nominal prices, mild climate, excellent health, numerous churches, free schools, productive soil, good markets, plenty of grass and water, low taxes and excellent railroad facilities. These are facts; and we invite investigation and extend a hearty welcome.

The Texas & Pacfiic Railway.

By reason of its mileage and location in the State, The Texas & Pacific Railway is the most important of all railway lines in Texas. Its entire length is 1499 miles, of which 1125 are in Texas, and 357 are in Louisiana,. In addition to its railway mileage it also operates a steamboat line between Shreveport, La. and Alexander, La., a distance of 300 miles. The main line extending from Texarkana to El Paso, via. Marshall and Dallas, has a length of 969 miles; the Trans-Continental division, from Texarkana to Fort Worth, via. Sherman, has a length of 244 miles; and the New Orleans division, extending from New Orleans, La. to Marshall, Texas has a length of 374, miles. With its connections, it forms one of the most important thoroughfares between the Gulf States and the Upper Mississippi Valley, between the Atlantic Coast and the Pacific Coast, and between Mexico and the entire North and East. Crossing the state from East to West it connects with almost every important railway line in Texas, and all points in Mexico, New Mexico and Louisiana can be reached by way of the Texas & Pacific.

The Trinity River.

"Men may come and Men may go,
But I go on Forever."

MANY are the records which prove that the Trinity River was navigable from Trinity Bay and the Gulf up to within some eighty miles from Dallas, and particularly until the Houston & Texas Central railroad was built between Houston and Dallas. These records are dated only a few years back and many of the captains, pilots and hands of the steamboats which used to ply on this river, also many shippers are still living, all of whom we have lately heard report that these steamboats used to carry as many as 1000 bales of cotton down to the Gulf ports, particularly Galveston. Hence in this instance, as in so many others we might mention, railroads

"killed, or rather "stunned" navigation, and, as was the case elsewhere, so here also, navigation is coming to life again and it will do so with a vengence, too. The Dallas people, as those of other towns before them, have found out that no city could become great that had not at its disposal water and rail facilities for their freight. The advantages of a water highway to the seaboard are many fold. Other cities in America and Europe have particularly found out that; by the fact that they could enjoy this double mode of transportation they secured much lower rates which caused them a great increase in trafic and manufacturers.

It was also found out that that rivers were not detrimental to railroads, because heavy raw material would have remained untouched on the rivers banks, manufactured there and shipped as manufactured articles by the railroads. Hence rivers are now said to be the "natural feeders of freight" to iron roads.

No sooner were the Dallas people convinced of these facts than not content with their twelve spokes of railroads, they determined to convert the "dirty little Trinity river," as they called it, of rafts and snags, of boughs and other obstructions, into an open waterway to the sea. This done, they had a steamboat 120 feet long by 20 beam, to run up to Dallas. They damed and locked the Trinity and they will continue these improvements for a year or two at most when the Trinity river will be permanently open to navigation from Dallas to the Gulf.

On the very day this navigation is secured will dawn for Dallas a new era of prosperity that will have but few parallels.

THE STATE FAIR.

THE TEXAS STATE FAIR and Dallas Exposition, next to the St. Louis Fair, stands at the head of all State Fairs in the Union, and is the lasting monument of the energy and enterprise of the citizens of Dallas.

The grounds and buildings are located about two and one-half miles east from the court house. It is reached by three lines of electric street railway, the Main street line of the Consolidated Traction Railway Co., the Dallas Rapid Transit Railway Co. and the Elm street line of the Queen City Railway Co.

The grounds have an area of 120 acres, are beautifully ornamented with shade trees and shrubbery of various kinds, supplied with water from the city, the service extending over the entire grounds. There is also an artesian well which supplies the visitors with the purest of water.

The buildings consist of a three-story Exposition hall, 200 x 300 feet, machinery hall, 90 x 300 feet, power hall, 75 x 300 feet, grand stand, 50 x 200 feet, horticultural hall, 60 x 180 feet, hall for exhibition of farm and mill products, 17 x 200 feet, poultry house 13 x 200 feet, geological hall, 43 x 85 feet; music hall with a seating capacity of 3000, stalls of the most modern kind for 800 horses, one row of booths, 20 x 200, another, 48 x 700 feet, a large stock arena, fronted by a large amphitheatre with large seating capacity, and twenty booths underneath a beautiful club house owned by the Dallas Jockey Club. WHA'T DALLAS WANTS.

"Seek and ye Shall Find."

IN THESE days of newspapers, telegraph, telephone, railroad and commercial agencies; as well as the thousand other sources of reliable information, it is an easy matter for an investor, when he cannot look over the ground in person to inform himself as to where his money will be wisely invested.

No city in the world can equal Dallas as a field for factories, as well as all other classes of industry.

The raw material for nearly all kinds of such industries is within easy reach, and there is no place where capital will be so sure to reap an abundant and speedy reward as in the manufacturing business here.

Upon investigation we find that any of the following manufactories and industries would receive the hearty co-operation of the citizens of Dallas.

Paper Mills
Starch Factories
Boiler Works
Glass "
Salt "
Iron and Steel Works
Knitting Factories
Cotton & Woolen Factories
Shoe and Rubber " Clothing "
Piano and Organ "
Castor Oil "
Stove Works

Besides the public schools there are the Oak Cliff College, Ursuline Academy, St. Mary's Orphanage and St. Mary's Institute (Episcopal), are well equipped schools and have won a fair share of patronage.

The curriculm of these institutions of learning compare favorably with much older and better endowed schools of their kind in the older states. It will be observed that Dallas is a city in which the best possible educational advantages in the Southwest can be secured at a very small expense.

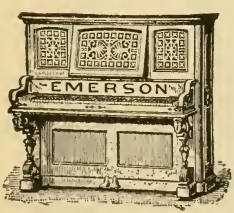
The state endowment of the common schools is very large, and is worthy the attention of the whole world. In the neighborhood of $7,427,808.75 in interest bearing bonds; more than $14,380.906.37 in interest bearing bond notes, and about 20,000,000 acres of unsold lands constitute the state endowment. In addition to this, the state has granted to each county four leagues of land, which constitute the county endowment.

Texas will soon be dotted over and over with magnificent school buildings and colleges. It is almost so now, but in ten years it will lead every other state in the Union.

We want to sell you a Piano or Organ.



We will give you Full Value for your money. We will protect you from being imposed upon by irresponsible dealers and consignment agents. We will sell you an instrument on easy payments without demanding notes. (Lien notes given for payments on Pianos and Organs are to be only transfered to manufacturers, sold to banks, or peddled on the streets to money lenders. When these notes are due they must be promptly paid or the loss of instrument and all the cash paid must be expected.) We shall prevent you from buying a low-grade instrument at the price of one of standard make. We have been established over 28 years in Texas and have large houses in Galveston, Dallas, San Antonio, Houston, Austin and Waco. We carry a larger stock of Pianos and Organs and Musical Goods than all dealers in Texas combined, and the largest stock of Sheet Music in the South. We respectfully refer you to any bank in Texas for our responsibility.

Farming and Stock Raising.

FARMING and stock-raising combined is a paying business in Dallas County. While farming alone is very profitable on account of the varied crops that can be raised and which mature at different seasons of the year, and the good markets within easy reach, growing cattle or hogs, or both, can be carried on well at the same time, and by feeding straw, corn or cotton seed to stock in a country where climate and nature alone does so much toward developing an animal; good cattle and hogs can be produced cheaply and taken without expense to a home market at the Dallas stock yards and packing houses and sold at good prices. A good market is here established for cattle, hogs, sheep, horses and mules.

Owing to the native pasturage the year through, and the mild winters and small expense of raising, they can be produced and fattened for market 25 per cent. cheaper than in any state, and 50 per cent. cheaper than in many states, and it can be established as a fact that 50 bushels of corn will finish and fatten a steer in Texas as well as 80 bushels in the latitude of Chicago and Omaha.

Dallas county has no superior for the rearing of fine horses.

There are several such stock farms in the county and all report a most prosperous business. Dallas County is the home of Lena Hill, two year-old; race record 2:12¾, which hold the race record of the world.

COUNTY STATEMENT.

Rate of tax (County) on the $100.00 valuation for 1894, is 55 cents. On February 1, 1894, the balance in the county treasury, was $57,-024.80.

Bonds Redeemed during 1893	$44.500 00
Grand Jury and Grand Jury Baliffs	3.877 00
For Petit Jurors	21.393 50
Net Income for 1893	$186.390.40
Amt. Court House bonds outstg. Feb. 1, 1894	315.000.00
Amt. Jail bonds outstg. Feb. 1. 1894	30.000.00
Amt. road & bridge bonds outstg. Feb. 1, 1894	20.000.00

Dallas County now levies an advalorum tax of 15 cents on each $100.00 worth of property for road and bridge purposes. To the amount thus collected is added the fines and forfeitures collected in the various courts of the county, making a total road and bridge fund of $48,419.14 taking last year as an average. There is now pending before the people a proposition to be rated on August 4th, to determine whether or not the Commissioners' Court shall levy an additional 15 cents on the $100.00 worth of property, making a total of 30 cents. If this proposition should carry it will give the county about $80,000 annually for road and bridge purposes. This amount judiciously expended for five years will give Dallas County a system of public roads equal to any in the United States.

CALL AND SEE US

COME TO TEXAS.

The "Lone Star" is waving—the flag of the free—
Then strike for Texas, if men you would be.
No idlers are wanted, the thrifty and wise,
To wealth and high station can equally rise.

Where corn, oats and cotton; the richest of loam
Which yields to the settler provisions and home.
Trees, of every description arise on each hand,
From alluvial soil to the rich table land.

Here springs are exhaustless, and streams never dry,
In the season from winter to autumn's bright sky,
A wide panorama of prairie is seen:
Of grasses of all kinds perennially green

Here millions of cattle, sheep, horses and goats,
Grow fat as if stall-fed or fattened on oats.
No poverty is found in the mighty domain,
To the man who exerts either finger or brain.

Here are homes for the millions, the rich and the poor,
While Texas opens wide her hospitable door.
She has thousands of acres—yes, millions to sell,
Yet can point without cost, to where pre-emptors can dwell.
Her terms will be easy with those whom she deals
While security, all, in their title can feel.

Buy land while 'tis cheap, and the finest select.
'Twill, young men, prove a fortune when least, you expect,
Old man, for your children, buy, file it away:
A God-send 'twill prove on some rainy day.

The New Capitol Building of Texas.

LOCATED AT AUSTIN.

DESCRIPTION.

The building is a fire-proof structure, classic in design. Its form approximates a Greek cross with projecting center and flanks; rotunda and dome at the intersection of the main corridors. It is 556 feet 6 inches long, inclusive of porticos, and 288 feet 10 inches at its greatest width: it is 311 feet in height from grade line to top of statute on dome. Besides the basement and dome elevation it is three full stories in height.

It has perfect apparatus for lighting the building by electricity, steam heating, ventilating, plumbing, drainage, sewerage, hydraulic elevators, and all other appliances and conveniences of a modern state capital.

Largest capital building of any state in the Union. It is only second in size to the capital at Washington, and is the seventh largest building in the world.

TEXAS IN BRIEF.

TEXAS is supposed to have derived its name from a small tribe of Indians of the village Tehas, on the Neches, signifiing "friend." In 1680, La Salle, the great French explorer, penetrated this immense southwestern country. On the part of the Spanish, Alonzo de Leon made the first attempt to settle Texas, and in 1691 a governor and troops were sent here by Spain. La Salle called the country Louisiana, for Louis XIV. The Spaniards named it New Philippines, in honor of Phillip V. San Antonio, the oldest European settlement in Texas, was founded in 1693: Goliad and Nacogdoches in 1717. The foundation of the Alamo was laid in 1744, and was denominated a mission.

Prior to 1820 Texas was ruled by governors. In 1823, Stephen F. Austin arrived with colonists, when the Mexican States of Coahuila and Texas were constituted one government, with their capital at Saltillo. Complaints of failure by these to the Mexican government finally eventuated in the revolution of 1835. On march 2, 1836, Texas declared itself a free and independent government, adopting a constitution on the 17th of the same month. The first president was David G. Burnet. Gen. Sam Houston was made commander-in-chief of the Texan forces, and after terrible fights and struggles, the heroic band, only one-third in number of their enemies, gained the decisive battle of San Jacinto, on April 21, 1836. Texas's annexation to the United States took place in 1845. The State seceeded from the Union

The Mineral Resources of Texas.

THE rapid advancement made by Texas up to the present time has been based almost entirely upon her agricultural resources, and is due to the remarkable fertility of many of her soils and to the great variety of products derived from their cultivation.

To-day another field opens, and she spreads before the world her wealth of mineral resources. which if they do not exceed those of agricultural promise to equal them in all respects.

The attention of capitalists, both home and foreign. Is being directed to these fields, and the sinking of mines, and the erection of furnaces and factories for the recovery and utilization of the various metals and other materials occuring here are already in progress.

Iron, petroleum, copper, lead, gypsum, potters clay, fire clay and kaolin, hydraulic limestone and cement materials, greensand marls, glass sands, building stones and marbles, natural gas, salt, manganese, gold, and silver.

In addition are valuable deposits of asphaltum, bat guano, millstone grit, marls, lithographic stone, soapstone and other minerals.

TIMBER SUPPLY.

There were 164 varieties of Texas woods shown at the New Orleans Exposition. The entire Eastern region of the state is a forest of pine, oak, walnut, ash, and cedar. Cypress and pecan, hickory, gum, cottonwood and elm are found in most all parts of the state in the river valleys.

The shortest and quickest line between Texas and Colorado. 150 to 220 miles saved by this route.

The Fort Worth & Denver City railroad traverses from the Summerland to the Alps. Almost every phase of American scenery—every sharp contrast—from the palms of the South to the heart of the Rockies, can be seen on this road and its connections.

TEXAS MIDLAND R. R.

The Texas Midland Ry. has its headquarters at Terrell, Texas, 31 miles east of Dallas.

The "Midland Route" has extended its line from Roberts to Greenville. In the near future the line (which is in progress) will extend from Greenville to Paris, thence to Hot Springs and Little Rock. It also anticipates extending its line from Ennis to Waco, Austin and San Antonio, then on to the Gulf.

Under its present management this road cannot help but thrive, as its leaders are men of push and energy. In time the Texas Midland route will be the most important railroad line throughout the State of Texas, as it is one of the wealthiest corporations in the Union, and is running through the most fertile and productive sections of the state. It will be but a short time until the "Midland Route" will have a name of world-wide reputation.

I It is organized under Ohio Laws. Hence,

1 It cannot make risky investments. Its securities are mostly mortgages on real estate worth in cash double the amount loaned thereon, exclusive of buildings.

2. Stockholders are responsible to the Policy-holders for twice their stock.

3. An Annual Examination of the Company's affairs is made by the State Commissioner.

4. It must hold for protection of Policy-holders a Reserve at Four per cent.—the highest rate.

II It is a Western Company. Hence,

1. It has great advantages in loaning money.

2. It can invest its money where it obtains it. In this it is unlike Eastern Companies.

3. It secures the highest rate of interest of any Company in the United States.

III It is liberal in its methods.

1. It avoids legal contests.

2 It continues its Policies in case of lapse until the value of the Reserve is exhausted.

3. It pays losses promptly, and before due.

IV It is Well Managed. Hence,

1 Its death rate for many years has been the lowest in the land.

2. It has had the most rapid increase of business.

3 It pays large dividends on dividend policies.

4. It offers the Guaranty Policy, the best known for Life and Term Insurance, at low rates, and the life-Rate Endowment, the best for Endowment at small cost. For terms of contract, call on or address

TESTIMONIAL.

OFFICE OF
SANGER BROS. Dallas, Texas, May 18, 1894.

To Whom it May Concern:

We have used the advertising columns of the Texas Baptist and Herald annually for the past 20 years, and take pleasure in stating that it has been as great a source of profit for the amount of money invested in it, as any other paper we have ever used. We consider it the cream among the weeklies. Very respectfully,
SANGER BROS.

And many others which space will not allow.
